

Marshall Lim 林子暉

- A litigator in private practice specialising in criminal law, with experience in both the public and private sectors.
- In the public service, he served as Deputy Public Prosecutor in the Attorney-General's Chambers, as well as Assistant Chief Public Defender in the Public Defender's Office, where he defended persons of limited means facing charges in criminal courts and designed policies to improve access to justice for vulnerable persons.
- Passionate about ensuring legal access for all, he conducted pro bono criminal defence and was also appointed to the MINDEF Pro Bono Panel to represent servicemen charged in military court. He also gave legal awareness talks to teachers and students under the aegis of "Project Schools" – a community outreach programme organised by the Law Society's Pro Bono Services (now Pro Bono SG).
- A strong supporter of continuing education, he speaks at Continuing Professional Development events, where he shares his love for and knowledge of the law with legal and non-legal professionals. He also trained SAF officers to qualify as Defending Officers and served as faculty and examiner for the Preparatory Course Leading to Part B of the Singapore Bar Examinations.
